

Chiang's Son to See JFK

Chiang Ching-kuo, eldest son of Nationalist Chinese President Chiang Kai-shek, meets with President Kennedy today after spending most of yesterday at the super-secret Central Intelligence Agency headquarters at Langley, Va., conferring with CIA Director John A. McCone and other officials.

Chiang's visit to the CIA came while that organization faced new criticism for its activities in strife-torn South Viet Nam. (UPI)

